On-Boarding Talent SUMMIT '2008

Everyone has started a new job, but how many of us have good memories of that experience???? On a perfect first day, paperwork would already be filled out, your workspace would be set up and stocked with supplies, your co-workers would welcome you, and a buddy would be assigned to help you navigate the new environment. In reality, this rarely happens.

Some Statistics...

- ✓ 90% of companies believe that their employees make their decision to stay at the company within the first six months
- ✓ In 2005, 60% of companies did not have an on boarding process, compared to only 24% today

The problem has been too big for too long to just give it lip service any more.

The collapse of employee loyalty, the mismatch between what the schools are producing and what companies need, low productivity, and high turnover rates, have plagued once-profitable companies and helped put some into receivership.

In today's employment economy, qualified talents are hard to find... Employers are challenged, not only by the intensity and focus required to attract and recruit top talent into the organisation, but the effort it takes to keep new associates engaged for long-term satisfaction and loyalty.

Organizations that are experiencing high growth have the unique challenge of hiring a high number of new associates in a short period of time to support their growth model. This brings several challenges:

High growth companies need a consistent approach to onboard new associates that will turn these challenges into a competitive advantage.

A multi-track on boarding process that fits the needs of the different levels of associates allows the company to manage the high volume of new hires. The process includes clear roles and responsibilities for the hiring manager, human resources partner and new associate and is built on best practices.

Your organisation's on boarding process has necessarily become a vital component in long-term growth and success.

- ✓ So what are you doing to ensure your new hires stay?
- ✓ Do you place equal emphasis on recruitment, selection and on-boarding?

Believe it or not ... New Employees decide whether or not to stay at a company within their first six months of employment.

Those who are engaged on the first day of work, have a greater incentive to stay.

Please join us in Mumbai on the 3rd & 4th of July for another engaging event.

Don't hesitate; these 2 days out of office will help you transform your organisation...

I Hope to meet you in Mumbai ...

Sayeed Sheikh

So, why is Inconnectiva different?

We're obsessive about quality:

Our case studies are thoroughly researched and vetted to make sure there are practical take-aways. No product pitches, no corporate PR. Just original, insightful examples that you can learn from.

We take a strategic approach:

We focus on the practical approach rather than the theory. So we won't tell you the theory, we'll tell you the how.

We're research-led:

We don't just report on an industry, we go much further. We research your needs. We go out, we meet your peers, we talk to them in their offices, understand their challenges and our products answer their questions.

DAY ONE: Thursday July 3rd, 2008 - Agenda at a glance

08.30 - 09.30: Registration & Breakfast

Objective Setting: Decide Your Goals - 09.30 - 10.00

“Strategic Significance of On-boarding People Right”

Both research and common sense tell us it's wise to invest in preparing employees to be successful at their jobs. If you want your new hires to become productive as quickly as possible, why wouldn't you? If you're going to spend all that money on acquiring employees, why wouldn't you prepare them to succeed? Despite the obviousness of this, many organizations approach the on boarding process with a level of Professionalism and quality they would never tolerate in their daily operations. Because many of the practices that bring out the best in employees - whether related to on boarding or other aspects of managing employees - are common sense, the goal isn't to surprise you with their complexity or novelty, but to challenge you to take an honest look at whether you are actually doing them. Your answers will help illuminate whether your on boarding process is the kind that leads to high employee engagement or buyer's remorse.

Interactive Discussion and Agenda Setting to be facilitated by Speakers of the Day with active involvement of all Participants

“The Stages of On-Boarding: Accelerating Senior Leadership Transitions”

Moving into a new position of leadership is one of the toughest challenges people face. Nearly half of new leaders fail in their first eighteen months. Often, failure is the result of crucial mistakes made in the very beginning. Critical mistakes made so early can be devastating for companies and leaders alike. But how can organizations and new leaders avoid them? Learn how new leaders can take charge, build their teams, and get great results in new roles faster than anyone thought possible. This is important because of the time value of accelerated performance and because delivering better results faster is the best way to reduce the risk of failure in a new leadership role. This talk focuses on how to manage on boarding as a process with discrete steps, invest in pre-boarding preparation before the start, and the need to focus on accelerating team performance after the pivot point of day one. Attendees will be ready to manage the different stages of on boarding to help their new recruits deliver better results faster.

08.30: Registration & Breakfast

09.00: Re-Cap of Day 1

How to Create a Powerful Employer Brand: What it really takes To Become a Great Place to Work

Employer Branding isn't about creating the ultimate recruiting sales pitch, nor is it about designing the perfect recruiting collateral. It's about creating a great work experience, identifying what makes your organization special, and then learning how to best tell the world. Unfortunately, many organizations don't do the hard work of making sure they actually DELIVER the great work experience conveyed in their marketing material. In this program, we'll explore how to create a work experience that enables you to deliver on your Employer Brand promise. Many employers put the proverbial cart before the horse when it comes to Employer Branding.

They invest great sums of money and intellectual firepower on clever ads and recruiting campaigns, but next to nothing on making sure they actually deliver a great work experience that makes a great Employer Brand possible. When employers do a great job Communicating a compelling Employer Brand message, but don't deliver on their promise, they only succeed at increasing the number of new hires who quickly discover they've made the wrong choice of employers.

Avoid making this same mistake. Learn how to create a work experience that MUST be in place for you to become a Great Place to work®

Points of Discussion:

- ✓ Unearth common mistakes employers make when they think they're engaging in Employer Branding
- ✓ Hear what you must do first, before spending money on a "branding campaign"
- ✓ Learn what universal human needs you must satisfy to create a work experience that leads to Becoming a Great Place to work
- ✓ Find out what today's new generation of employees are looking for in a work experience
- ✓ Know the key moments of truth you must be great at, if you are going to have a Great Place to work

Prasenjit Bhattacharya - CEO - Great Place to Work® Institute India

Prasenjit has about two decades of experience in Indian and multinational corporations like HSBC, Grow Talent, Eicher Consultancy Services (ECS Ltd.), Siemens, and Crompton Greaves. Prasenjit has worked closely as an internal HR consultant and as an external consultant with senior leadership teams at various organisations in the area of change management.

Prasenjit heads the Great Place to Work Institute, India. GPTW® Institute is the world's leading Institute doing research and consulting in creating great workplaces. He is a thought leader in the area of employee engagement and employer branding, and his articles and comments appear regularly in Economic Times, Human Capital magazine, and other publications.

In his previous stint in consulting Prasenjit has worked widely in various areas in HR, and in Service Quality and TQM in industries ranging from telecom, cement, heavy engineering, automotive components, dairy products, software, hospitals and hotels.

The session will have a 15 min refreshment break

Session a: Case Study Presentation - 11.45 - 13.00

Building the Bridge from Recruitment to Engagement: Strategically and Tactically

Effective talent management includes a world-class on boarding strategy. Executing such a strategy depends on defining on boarding in your organization, identifying and articulating the business needs, and creating a structured, consistent process. On boarding starts during recruitment and becomes formal when an offer is accepted. Studies have shown that an effective on boarding program can increase employee retention by up to 25%. Successful on boarding delivers the right company information, support for building key relationships and tools for providing critical feedback. Defining deliverables for each individual within the organization is also key to success. An important deliverable that is often overlooked is managing the personal transition. A successful program provides support and resources to address the needs of the new hire and his/her personal network. For those of you at the beginning stages of this process, this session will teach you how to get moving in your strategy.

Dr. Pallab Bandyopadhyay - Vice President & Head Human Resources, APAC - Perot Systems

Dr Pallab Bandyopadhyay has more than twenty four years of professional experience in the areas of Institution, Organisation and Human resources development.
